

ARRIVAL OF THE CRESCENT CITY

Her Reception at Havana.

Special Notice to Capt. Davenport Not to Return with Purser Smith.

THE PRESIDENTIAL ELECTION IN THE UNITED STATES.

By J. M. G. G.

The American mail steamship Crescent City, Henry K. Davenport, U.S. Navy, commander, from New Orleans, via Havana, arrived at Quarantine about three o'clock yesterday morning.

She left Havana on the evening of the 18th inst., and has experienced a succession of heavy northerly gales.

As previously reported, the C. C. arrived off More Castle on the evening of the 15th, but had to remain outside till next morning.

The Spanish steam frigate Isabel Segundo, which was cruising off Havana, spoke the C. C., and after learning her name and destination passed on.

Upon entering the harbor, to which no objection was made, the Port Captain came alongside and informed Capt. Davenport that the mails and all the passengers could land, but that Purser Smith must remain on board.

Upon Capt. Davenport expressing himself pleased at the termination of the difficulties heretofore existing, the Captain of the Port assured him that it was only for this trip; and should Mr. Smith return in the ship from New York, no communication with the shore would be allowed. Captain D. expressed his regret at this, and remarked that the difficulty was becoming more complicated by this measure; and that, although the right to exclude any individual from the island whom the authorities might consider prejudicial to its tranquillity was not denied, he could not concede the same to the Captain-General to prohibit the mails and all passengers, simply because one person on board was obnoxious to his Excellency.

To this reply was made. Capt. Davenport was told when he left Havana for New Orleans, on the outward trip, that the ship would not be permitted to enter the port on her return if Mr. Smith came in her, but it seems the Captain General was induced to change his mind a few days previous to her arrival, in consideration that her voyage would not be completed until her return to New York, and that no charge could take place in the officers before that time.

On the eve of sailing, Capt. Davenport received a note from Messrs. Drake & Co., enclosing a copy of one to them from Martin Galiano, the Political Secretary of the Captain-General. The letter, together with one from Capt. Davenport to Messrs. Drake & Co., we give below.

POLITICAL SECRETARY'S OFFICE.

Havana, November 18, 1852.

Notwithstanding that there remains in full force and view the order of His Excellency the Governor and Captain-General, which I communicated to you on the 4th of September last, relative to the being forbidden that Mr. Smith, an employee of the American steamer Crescent City, should return to this island, and also the order of said vessel in this port, should she convey him, as the special commission by His Excellency, on the last voyage of said vessel to New Orleans, and on her return to this port, which she has effected to day, might be interpreted in a doubtful manner, it being a concession founded on special reasons of which His Excellency the Minister Plenipotentiary of Her Majesty, at Washington, has knowledge, His Excellency instructs me to say to you that in future the said order will be before; so that being informed of this, you may communicate the information to whom it may concern, and thereby avoid that, through bad intelligence, third parties be misled. God preserve you many years.

(Signed.) MARTIN GALIANO.
